Let's Talk Sensory:

Information on Sensory Differences in Children with Developmental Delays

Description of Event:

1. Understand how sensory systems effect child exploration and learning
2. Describe how children with over registration & under registration sensory challenges take in information from their environment.
3. Learn about a variety of occupational therapy treatment activities that are helpful for children with sensory challenges.
4. Provide examples for sensory play that parents and children can try at home.

Meg Gillard

Meg Gillard is a New York State licensed Occupational Therapist & licensed massage therapist. She has worked at Racker for over 40 years. Meg is particularly interested in the sensory systems of children with developmental disabilities and children with autism spectrum disorders. She is strength based in her approach and she is passionate about helping children and their families work together to ease the impact of sensory challenges on daily life.
